THREE ARE BURNED TO DEATH ON FARM

Two women and a baby were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the farm home of Joseph Lawson, colored, some ten miles south of Maidstone, according to reports reaching here.

While her husband was at work in the fields, Mrs. Lawson tried to light a fire in the stove with coal oil. Her dress caught fire and she died in the hospital. Her infant daughter and her mother, Mrs. Crawford were burned to death in the house.

FIRE AT DINA

At six o'clock on the morning of Tuesday April 22nd fire was discovered in the old residence of H. E. Veltikold. This building is almost historic in character, being one of the first to be erected and is well known by all early travellers; but is now used as a store room. The whole became a total loss together with the tools, harness and seed oats that were stored therein. For some time the residence was seriously threatened, but this danger was successfully averted.

Occurrences of this nature emphasize most strongly the necessity of the extension of the phone system. It took considerable time for a messenger to reach Dina post office to summon help, and had the neighbours known in time considerable salvage work could have been accomplished, and the loss considerably reduced.

WEDDING BELLS

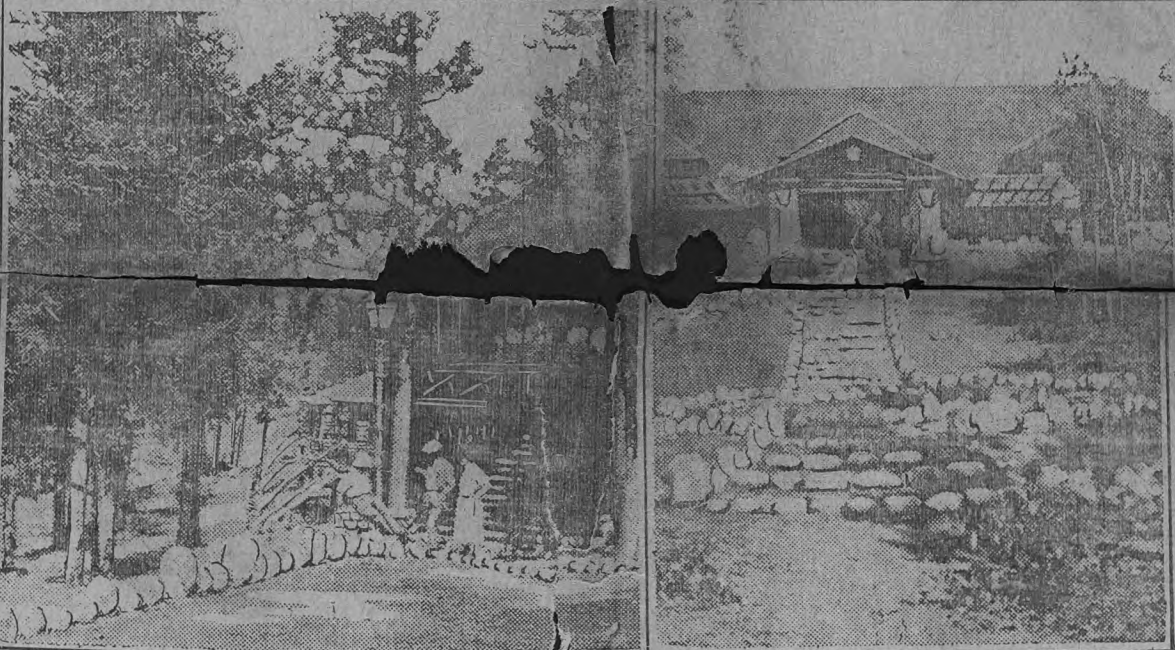

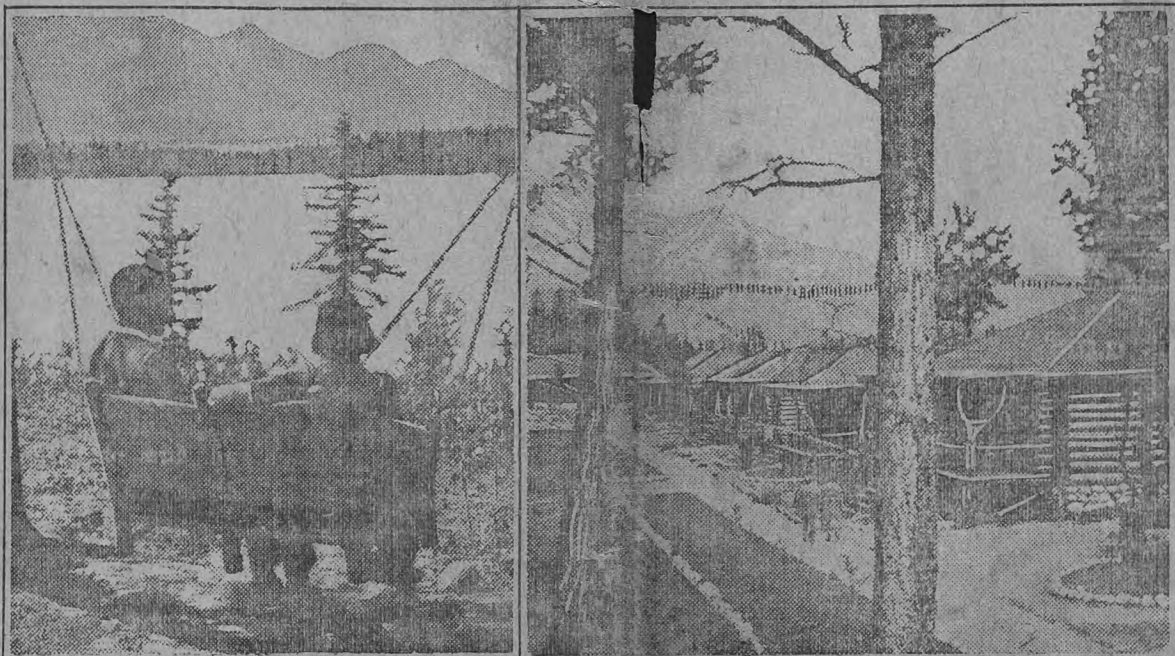

NELSON—McLAUGHLIN

A wedding of considerable interest to the many friends of the participants was celebrated at Spruce Grove, Alberta, on Tuesday afternoon, April 22nd, when Miss McLaughlin became the bride of Mr. R. W. Nelson.

The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McLaughlin, parents of the bride, by Rev J. W. Baimbridge of Calder, a fellow graduate of the bride. The bride, given away by her father, wore a charming white satin dress trimmed with delicate shadow lace, and carried a beautiful bouquet of Othelia roses and orange blossoms. The wedding march was played by Miss Ione McLaughlin, sister of the bride. After which a reception was held. The happy couple after spending a few days in Edmonton, motored to their home near Ribstone, where they will in future reside.

The Chronicle is but voicing the sentiments of the district in wishing Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Nelson a long and happy life in our midst.

CANADA'S NATIONAL PLAYGROUND

CANADIANS are fortunate in their National Parks, in that they have within their borders Alpine scenery which is not equalled anywhere on the continent, and more and more they are realizing that holidays in Canada hold for the lover of out-of-doors all the thrills that could be found anywhere in the world. Jasper National Park in the Canadian Rockies, contains many high peaks, eternally snowcapped, and on the sides of the mountains are glaciers which have stood the test of ages. Millions of tons of ice, stretching in some instances, almost as far as the eye can see, lure the adventurous climber to new attempts, while in the calm, peaceful valleys wild game of all kinds live at peace with mankind and the world.

Additional bungalows for the accommodation of guests are to be erected at Jasper Park Lodge, the log-cabin hotel of the Canadian National Railway at Jasper National Park, in time for the opening of the 1924 season, it is announced by the Canadian National Railway. During last season the popularity of Jasper National Park was so great that the capacity of Jasper Park Lodge was taxed, and the additional bungalows being provided this year will take care of almost fifty per cent. more guests.

Four 4-room bungalows, each with bath, and two 12-room bungalows, each room also having private bath, are being erected. In addition, a double-deck boathouse, with the upper floor for conventions, and dancing, is being constructed, and an octagonal curio building is being built near the main Lodge. Four new buildings are being erected to serve as employees' quarters, the kitchens are being extended and the main lounge is being extended to provide for a ladies' reception room and for a men's billiard and card room.

HARDY ANNUALS SUITABLE FOR CHAUVIN PLANTING

Here is a list of hardy annuals suitable for gardens in the Chauvin district.

SWEET PEAS

What is a garden without its rows of sweet peas? If there is one species above another that must have a place, we will agree on Sweet Peas. They give such abundance of bloom, respond so readily to good culture, and if seeds are not allowed to form, flowers can be had all summer long. There are many desirable colors but just to mention one, the following varieties may be secured—King Man-

FARM WAGES WENT UP IN LAST YEAR

The average wages of farm help, show a slight advance for 1923 as compared with 1922 says the bureau of statistics. For Canada, the average monthly wage of farm help for the summer season of 1923 was $61.00 as against $59.00 in 1922, and for women 39.00 the same as in 1922.

The average value of occupied farm land which includes both improved and unimproved land, with dwelling houses, barns, stables and other farm buildings, was returned as $37.00 per acre as compared with $14.00 in 1921.

CATTLE MALADY AFFECTS HERDS IN EDMONTON AREA

An extraordinary malady of a particular virulent nature which has occurred among cattle in northern Alberta, appears to have been counteracted by Dr. P. R. Talbot, provincial veterinarian, after veterinarians called by owners of the herds had been baffled.

The malady comes with remarkable rapidity, the symptoms being an extreme itchiness all over the body, some of the cattle being so affected around the feet as to scratch off their claws, a severe swelling around the eyes and all over the head, and a general puffiness all over the whole

MUNICIPAL LANDS TO BE RE-ASSESSED THIS YEAR

We notice by the amendments to the Municipal Districts Act in the last session of the Legislature that all Municipal Districts in province of Alberta are required to make a new assessment of all lands during the summer. All such assessments are to be completed before September, and all Courts of Revision are to be held and their work completed before December 15th. This assessment is to be good for the next five years.

PANSY

For hardiness as well as for its continuity of bloom, this flower must have a foremost place. It is treated here as an annual, seed being sown every year. except that one beds seeds itself. When plants live through the winter, the snow is scarcely gone before bloom appears, thus from snow to snow there is endless variety of beauty.

PHLOX DRUMMONDI

Not gorgeous yet rich and chaste, the phlox with its flowers about an inch in diameter and of such a variety of colors has a sub-flower-lovers.

ANTIRRHINIUM OR SNAPDRAGON

Who does not welcome the snapdragon? It carries its erect flower stem with the peculiarly curled flowers nearly as long as the pansy blows. It is thus one of the hardiest.

TEN WEEK STOCK

These, like the phlox are more of the moest kind yet with colors so varied and satisfying. Their fragrance may be perceived from some distance. Most will find the Ten Week Stock more satisfying than the Virginia Stock. Neither is easy to transplant but may be sown where they are desired. Should be sown early.

CANDYTUFT

When these flowers are required, it will be quite difficult to excel this vigorous flower. Its fragrance, too, adds to its desirability. It is also one of the hardiest races.

ALYSSUM

Like the candytuft, this flower is white, but grows only about half as high, about six inches. A regular mat of white can be formed which will perfume the air.

LINARIA

The flowers are small like miniature Snapdragons, on slender stems, but when massed in a bed will give a brilliant sparkling effect of very varied colors, some odd. They readily seed themselves. When cut for a bouquet, if bunched they are disappointing, but if judiciously scattered through the bouquet with their tops reaching out an inch or so, they will give a very pleasing effect. At Beaverlodge this flower usually blooms until late October.

MIGNONETTE

Another old favorite. Few will want to miss its fragrant spikes in the bouquet of cut flowers.

CALIFORNIA POPPY

For a fine display of color, few plants can excel the California Poppy. Its rich, deep yellow is its prevailing color, but it is advisable to get all its colors if possible.

POPPY

These must be sown where they are to grow. They have proved hardy and vigorous.

VERBENA

This dainty flower holds a firm place, being one of the old reliable. Should be sown early.

PIPETUNA

These flowers are also quite hardy.

As they are not so hardy as most of the foregoing early in blooming various colors so hardy as most of their sturdy Through their masses of from white to purple the fall. They stems present great blooms throughout the should be sown early.

CLARKIA

This graceful plant is recommended through its hardy as most of the foregoing.

SALPIGLOSSIS

The form and color of these bloom are handsome for all his liar markings. A few plants will require no special troubles. Should be sown in 16 to 18

BUTTERFLY FL

This plant grows from flowers. high and presents a single covered with butterfly in rows It has appeared best in a con-plant set here and the grow by it-of either species making a contrast rather than in a some of the self. In the latter species the colors are fine, some ot-sprightly effect is lost to show quires to be mixed with age. Then her sharp defined colors What is off to its best advantage observers will ask that?"

PORTACULA

Low growing and presents flat on soil, slow in growth the boom of this plant a mat-like appearance glowing colors.

NASTURTIUM

Are rapid growers and bloomers and do well in

They are fine for ornamenting through the summer, many odd places. They are also quite easy to transplant, but are quite susceptible to frost.

KOCHLIA

Best sown in the house or hot-bed. The seedlings may be transplanted to a row, and when grown, will resemble a hedge about two feet high. They make a good background for a flower-bed or placed judiciously at central points are exceedingly ornamental. The early frosts change the green to a burning red.

DIANTHUS OR PINKS

Though called biennial, they are treated as annuals. They are also hardy and present a very gratifying appearance.

HOLLYHOCKS

Also biennial. These attained a height of four feet and blossomed the first year from seed. The roots are taken up for planting in the spring.

body. The skin appears to be separated from the flesh and the organs are so swollen as to be almost reversed. With all this goes a loss of appetite.

Mudtuedbur...ad— S E ES EE

Dr. Talbot's attention was called to this sickness by farmers north of Edmonton and as far south of the city as Wetaskiwin, after veterinaries had given up cases and he also was unable to recognize or understand them. Rather strangely all the cattle affected were on farms where silos are in use, and the doctor's opinion is that the malady is some acute form of forage poisoning.

For some reason he is not able to explain at present, Dr. Talbot tried acetic acid in his experiments on the affected animals, and found that this, given in small doses and diluted, gave satisfactory results when used as a drench, for the malady disappeared as suddenly as it had asserted itself.

It is the veterinarys view that the cause is due to animals feeding on spoilt and mouldy silage, which has been thrown out in a frozen state and thawed. He is conducting further experiments for discovering the exact cause and proper curative remedy. The cattle that Dr Talbot has treated are being watched cosely. He is to try the effect of a cure for weed poisoning and will also make blood tests, taking some from the affected animals and tranfusing it to healthy subjects, but he is somewhat handicapped in his work owing to the fact that practically all the animals that showed signs of the malady were valuable animals, too costly for erperimental purposes.

ALBERTA CATTLE FOR JAPAN

For the purpose of testing out the possibilities of the market for Alberta livestock in Japan, a shipment of 28 steers and cows, and two horses was made this week from Edmonton. The shipment is being made under the personal direction of H. A. The cattle shipment is made up of 14 head each of steers and cows, weighing from 1200 to 1450 pounds each and made up Herefords and Aberdeen Angus chiefly. Most of the cattle were bought on the Edmonton stock yards, while three head were fed at Olds agricultura school and

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Nothing is more delightful to the eye when driving through the country than to observe the farm house, buildings and yards, no matter how humble they may be, in a well kept and tidy condition. The same, of course, is equally true of the town buildings, no matter be they sheds or business places, or residences.

This district is one in which natural beauty has been lavishly bestowed upon it. We have large areas of park lands with rolling downs and small hills of great charm; and we are not saying too much when we state that we have already at hand the setting for one of the most beautiful district for homes on the prairies of North America.

"Familiarity," they say, "breeds contempt," and most certainly easy it is for one who has to chase horses, and cattle for years past, or to make long tedious hauls over the trails, to lose his full measure of appreciation of the nature beauties by which he is surrounded. Then too often, follows a disregard for the appearance of the home buildings which finds expression in a general state of untidiness and depreciation.

During the rush of spring work there is little opportunity for the farmer to devote time to a clean-up week, but there is no excuse for the town dweller who fails to do so. In fact he is favored in this matter by having a slight respite from the rush of pre-seeding spring business. The townman has another advantage having a smaller number of buildings on his property than has the farmer, and these buildings lend themselves more freely to decoration.

Don't forget Arbor Day. Use a little paint. Make a flower grow where the rubbish pile grew. Destroy breeding places for flies, germs and mosquitoes.

That may be all we can accomplish this year for lack of previous planning, but if we all drew up a three-year scheduled plan of progress towards beautifying our holdings it would be wonderful what we could accomplish.

Have you ever stopped to consider the fact that loyalty to community interests is the highest form of patriotism?

Show us the man who is loyal and true to every interest of his own community and we will show you in that same individual one in whom his country can report absolute confidence in any emergency that calls for his allegiance.

On the other hand, the man who is careless and unconcerned for the interests of his community is most apt to display the same spirit of indifference toward his government or his state should any serious danger threaten either.

Try to imagine an entire state composed of innumerable communities welded and cemented into a symmetrical whole, each striving to excel the others, but each, from its own local loyalty, developing a broader and deeper loyalty that reaches out and embraces the whole.

This would be brought about if we could be brought to see that we owe allegiance to our own people, but that the prosperity and success of others is in no wise a detriment to us, but rather a help, that if each community would develop itself to the utmost—materially, mentally and morally—none would need be envious of others, neither would any need do aught but to detract from another's interest.

Is any change that apparently comes over human nature and the human soul when in the face of what seems certain death genuine enough to persist after the danger has passed? That is the underlying theme of Goldwyn's great picture, "The Sin Flood," adapted from Henning Berger's famous drama, "Syndafloeden," which comes to Chauvin Monday May 5th and Edgerton the following day.

OUR SHORT STORY WAS HIS WIFE

MUCH TO BLAME

The first settlers of Maine found plenty of salmon both in the Kennebec and Penobscot rivers. During the spring and summer vast schools of them came up from the sea. The old squire has told me that in his young days he used to drive across country to the "Forks" of the Kennebec for a load of salmon which afforded the whole neighborhood a very agreeable change from the ordinary winter fair. A young neighbor, Jonathan Edwards, went with him. They hitched two strong long-legged horses that they owned one ahead of the other, as thorough braced wagon with the sides boxed up so as to hold eight to ten hundred weight of fish.

They did not have to angle for the salmon. Their fishing outfit consisted of merely a four-pronged fork and a bushel basket. As the water of Salmon stream, a tributary of the Kennebec, fell in May, the pools at the foot of shallow rapids would be packed with salmon that were unable to ascend the stream further. While Jock would enter the foot of a pool and beat about with a pole to keep the fish from escaping downstream Joe would wade into the water with a fork and throw the fish out on the bank. Though it sounds like a fish story, the old squire has told me that sometimes and at some pools he could throw out enough fish to fill the wagon in half an hour!

While the salmon were running, bears were numerous at the Forks. All the bears of the surrounding wilderness seemed to congregate there to feast off the fish. By stealing up quietly at any one of the pools, a hunter could easily get a shot at them. At that season, however, a bearskin was not worth much; nor was their flesh in favor so soon after they had left their winter dens.

For six or seven consecutive years with the same two horses hitched tandem—Jack and Jill they called them—the two boys, Joe and Jock, made the trip for salmon. Two days were required for the drive over to the Forks, and the same number was required for the return. Only once did the boys have any trouble or anything like a serious adventure and that was on the last trip that they made. Then they brought back no salmon and indeed had to walk home.

The time was the period of the famous northeastern boundary controversy between the United States and Great Britain, a dispute that had been going on for several years. When Andrew Jackson was president for a wonder the warlike old personage was in favor of accepting the decision of the King of the Netherlands, who had been appointed as arbitrator, and of relinquishing a large slice of the Maine territory to New Brunswick.

But the people stood out against the decision. The legislature voted a war credit of eight hundred thousand dollars and ordered a draft of ten thousand men to defend the frontier. Volunteers were also numerous for the war spirit was rampant. People talked freely of a force of fifty thousand men.

Meanwhile the heads of government both of Washington and at London were doing what they could to calm the tempest and arrange a peaceful settlement. Both sides appointed agents and commissioners to proceed to the region in dispute and to investigate the opposing claims and determine where the boundary ought to be as stated in the treaty of 1783. The difficulty was that the makers of the treaty had known almost nothing of the country described in it and had made use of terms liable to be misunderstood.

The president finally sent Winfield Scott to take command of the military force in Maine and if possible to act as mediator. Soon afterwards the two countries effected a settlement and avoided bloodshed.

It was while the boundary dispute was at its height that the then young squire and his neighbor Jock made their last trip to the Forks for salmon. They had filled their wagon and had shot a bear, which they had lashed on top of the load, and while Jack and Jill trotted smartly down the road towards Waterville, were on their way home when at a roadside tavern they fell in with an official party consisting of a government land agent and two assistants, who were travelling with great haste to the Aroostook region. At the tavern there was also a sheriff and his posse who had come along in pursuit of a man who had shot his neighbor in dispute of a line fence.

With the agent whose name the boys heard was Greenlaw was a recruiting sergeant who was enlisting men for the expected war on the eastern frontier. Eighteen of the wild, rough fellows had just come down the Kennebec, and all were cock-a-whop to fight the redcoats. Others also were joining the party, and there were more men than the teams could carry; the agent was making efforts to purchase horses. Noticing that Jack and Jill were good roadsters, he promptly asked the boys to sell them "No sir-ee" Jock replied promptly "We have seventy miles to go. How would we get home with our load of salmon?"

"I will give you two hundred dollars for those horses," the agent replied "I am in a great hurry to get on from here. I will buy your wagon and the fish and that bear too."

Now from thirty to forty dollars was the price of a likely young horse at that time; Jack and Jill were twelve or thirteen years old. Therefore when Greenlaw offered thirty dollars for the wagon, thirty more for the salmon and the bear ten dollars apiece for the harnesses, the boys were a good deal astounded.

"I guess its government money all right," Joe whispered, "or he would not be so mighty flush with it."

They accepted the agent's offer and he made out a bill of sale for them to sign and then paid them in new, bright gold eagles—twenty-eight of them—the first gold money that the boys had ever seen. They had to read the words "Ten Dollars" on the coins before they really knew what they were.

The tavern keeper and his wife stood looking on. "Oh, ain't those pretty!" the woman exclaimed.

The boys tied the gold in Joe's pocket handkerchief and put it at the bottom of his inside coat pocket.

"You are rich!" the tavern keeper's wife said, and laughed. "See that you don't let any of those river drivers get that away from you. They are a rough gang."

The advice seemed good. The river drivers, several of whom were intoxicated, were roistering about the place. They had taken the bear from the load, and, setting it astride a pole began to race up and on with it, whooping like Indians and making a great uproar.

Though the land agent and the sheriff had asked for lodging at the tavern, Jack and Joe determined to walk on after supper. There was a bright full moon just rising, and they hoped to get as far as Waterville. They did not at all like the noisy, drunken crowd at the tavern.

While the boys were at supper, however the landlord's wife came and whispered to them that she had saved a room for them. "I'm going to put you in my best room," she said "It's the one next my own. You will be safe and comfortable there."

She sat down beside them while they ate and talked constantly about herself and her husband and her little boy, whom she called into show them "Sim is just getting over the whooping cough," she said. "He stills whoops like an Indian every morning. Show them how you can whoop, Sim. The little fellow stood off and began to whoop and cough till he almost lost his breath altogether."

The boys set the woman down as queer and loquacious, but nevertheless they decided to pass the night at the tavern. In the course of an hour or so they retired to their room and Joe hung his coat with the gold in it on the bedpost beside his pillow. Although there was no lock on the door he thought that the money would be safe enough there. Few house doors had locks in those days. Despite the racket that was going on outside Joe and Jock soon fell asleep.

They slept soundly but awhile after midnight Jock, who was on the far side of the bed, awakened suddenly. He thought that he heard someone in the room. The night was quiet, and the moonlight was shining brightly in the window. He peeped over Joe, who was snoring comfortably, and saw someone standing close beside bed. It was a woman, the tavern keeper's wife! For a few moments she stood there, then she stole out.

Suddenly Jock thought of the gold. He slid out of bed and going on tip-toe round to the opposite side, felt in Joe's coat pocket. The gold was gone! He hastened to the door and looked out. The light of a candle was shining through a crack in the door of the next room. He went softly to the door and peeped in the crack. The woman was crouched on the brick hearth of a fireplace beside which she had set the candle. Jock was only a boy and so did not open the door and speak to her, as he should of done; instead he tiptoed back and awakened Joe.

When Joe had searched his pocket he was confused and nonplussed as Jock. They stole softly out to peer through the crack of the door together, but that time the light had dissipated.

Older and more experienced men no doubt would have made a stir at once. But Jock and Joe felt reluctant to raise an alarm. It was hard for them to believe that the tavern keeper's wife who had seemed so kind and friendly, had really stolen their money. They sat on the side of the bed, whispering about the matter in great anxiety until daybreak, when, when they began to hear people stirring in the house. Then they went out, and as soon as Greenlaw appeared they told him of their loss and of what Jock had seen.

The agent was incredulous at first but after hearing the particulars and going to see how the rooms were situated, he began to believe that the tavern keeper's wife was the culprit. "I thought she looked like a queer piece," he said. "We shall inform the sheriff, and then we'll talk with the husband and see if he knows anything about it. I don't believe he does," the agent added, "He seems like a rather good sort of man."

They found the tavern keeper at the barn and told him that they suspected his wife of stealing. The man (Continued on page seven) did not appear to be indignant or surprised as they had expected he would be. He listened without speaking to all that they had to say. Then, "It may be that she took it," he replied, and he admitted that she had taken things before. "I don't think she can help it," he said. "But come into the house and we will see what we can find out."

WSS HIS WIFE MUCH TO BLAME

They went to the room where Jock had seen the woman with the candle; it proved to be the room in which the tavern keeper and his wife slept. The woman herself was in the kitchen at the time. After glancing about, the husband called her. She rushed in, looking a great deal flurried. First her husband, and then the sheriff, bade her give up the money she had stolen from the boys. "They saw you take it," the sheriff added sternly. "No use for you to deny it."

But deny it the woman did most vehemently and tearfully. "I never touched it!" she cried. "It was some of those river drivers!"

"You may as well own up," said the sheriff. "Tell us where it is."

"Yes, Phoeby, you had better tell us where you put it," the tavern keeper said to her in a sober tone.

But she stoutly denied any knowledge of the money.

But another much interested spectator had now joined the group—little Sim, whom the talk had awakened in his cot near the bed. He had heard what his father had said to his mother, and now, slipping from the bed, toddled forward. "I know where 'tis daddy," he said. "'Tis down there." He pointed to the brick hearth of the fireplace.

Before he could say any more his mother was upon him. She caught him up and shook him and boxed his ears. But they had all seen where the little fellow had pointed and now noticed that one of the bricks was loose. They pried it up, and there in the cavity beneath it lay the gold in Joe's handkerchief. Nor was that all which the cache contained. Below the gold lay a watch and chain, a purse with silver money, two silver spoons and a little case containing gold bowed spectacles. Former travellers stopping at the tavern as well as Jock and Joe had suffered losses.

The woman was quick with an excuse, a lame one. "I only took it to keep the river drivers fronting it away from them, she said, was going to give it to them afterakfast.

The agent and the sheriaughed "Madam, you ought to arr for this," the sheriff said to heIf you two boys," he added, " will pack to Skowhegan and appear agst this woman, I will take her instudy.

But both Jock and Joe shed to hasten home and, now that they had recovered their money, we not so desirous as they should fe been perhaps of having their que hostess punished. Besides the land gent declared that he was in far to great a hurry to stop.

As for the tavern keeper he said very little; he looked sad a well as ashamed of what had occurrd at his house. It may be that his life was what psycholigist call a kbtoman-iac. That view of matter seas to be the most charitable.

The boys went on from th tavern afoot and reached home twodays later with their twenty-eight gdd eagles —but with no salmon.

WESTERN CATTLE IN EUROPE

Demand From United Kingdom Constant Since Lifting of Embargo, Says Col. Mullins.

Montreal.—Sounding a note of the strongest possible faith in, and optimism for, the future of the agriculturalist in Western Canada, Colonel H. A. Mullins, prominent rancher of Poplar Point, Manitoba, who arrived in Montreal on Sunday, submitted to an interview yesterday.

"The situation on the prairies is rapidly improving," the Colonel declared, "and the Westerners are taking courage. Moreover, many of those who in recent years left the farm are returning. I consider the tide in Western Canada is beginning to turn strongly from the city to the farm once more. The three prairie provinces especially have a bright dous future, and, if due consideration is given to their particular needs, the realization of that future cannot be long deferred."

Asked to mention some of the influences which, in his opinion, would tend to hasten the Golden Age for Western Canada the Colonel unhesitatingly pleaded first for a better understanding between East and West.

"The Western farmer can also do a great deal to help himself," the Colonel added. "I consistently advocate that all farmers out there should go in for raising livestock as well as other stuff, especially for raising high-grade stock, and that those now in that game should stick to it. They should also stop crowding their shipments—and this applies not only to livestock but to other products, such as grain—into three months or so of the year. Then they won't find themselves forced to take low prices because of the rush, and things will be better for the country generally as well."

Despite many recent setbacks, there is, the Colonel is convinced, a world market for good Western cattle. The demand from the United Kingdom, he says, has been constant and heavy since the lifting of the embargo, though it has been affected adversely by the recent closing of Liverpool, Glasgow and some other ports on account of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease.

Colonel Mullins is in an excellent position to speak with authority on the cattle situation, for he has been shipping cattle overseas steadily and intends to continue. Recently he shipped 148 head from Winnipeg to Montreal. The train, supplemented by cars containing 100 additional head from Toronto, left the Western city at 10 p.m. on Wednesday via Canadian Pacific and arrived at the stock-yards here on Sunday morning, the Colonel following them up by a passenger train which left Winnipeg on Thursday night. The shipment is bound for Dundee via St. John, N.B. The Colonel paid a warm tribute to the Company for the manner in which it had handled his consignment. "The shrinkage in weight was unusually light," he stated, "and not only did they make up this loss of weight in a few hours in the Canadian Pacific yards here, but they are already heavier than they were in Winnipeg. This experience, and my inspection of these yards, has convinced me that ranchers may ship their cattle via Canadian Pacific with confidence that they will be splendidly and rapidly handled."

C.N.R. HAULAGE INCREASES

Since the opening of the present crop year, September 1, until pril 14th, a total of 129,131 cars of grain have been moved over the lines of the Canadian National Railways. This is an increase of 20,051 cars over the same period of the previous year.

The young man in a hurry to look for riches generally finds experience.

The gold mines of Northern Ontario broke all previous records in the month of January, when they produced approximately $2,100,000, based on preliminary reports received from the mines.

It is reported that arrangements have been made for the financing of a $500,000 plant in Edmonton, Alta., for the manufacture of paving blocks from the tar sands of Fort McMurray.

The first of the private fur auction sales which the Hudson Bay Company has decided to hold in future at their head office in Montreal took place recently, when a collection of various furs, estimated roughly at $25,000 to $30,000 value, was put up for sale by sealed bids.

Grain handled at the port of Montreal in 1923 totalled 120,013,938 bushels, the largest amount shipped through any port in North America during the year. Montreal thus maintains for the third consecutive year her position as the leading grain exporting port of the continent.

Dr. Geo. H. Locke, chief librarian, Toronto, at the request of the Canadian Authors' Association, has undertaken to supervise the selection of volumes for the Canadian literature exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition. The task involves the gathering together of 500 representative books and it is anticipated will take about a fortnight.

From all indications, the potato shipments to Havana this season from the port of St. John, New Brunswick, will greatly exceed those of last year. To date there have been 750,307 bushels sent forward in twenty steamers, while from September 1, 1922, until January 31, 1923, a total of 505,668 bushels were shipped in seventeen steamers.

With heavy enquiries from South American sources for Canadian flour, millers expect to see their export volume substantially increased during the month of February, as compared with January. This movement, together with offerings of a premium for wheat at Vancouver, has been the most encouraging trade feature of the past month in Winnipeg, Man.

Colonel Geo. H. Ham, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who recently returned from Florida, reports that Canada was prominently featured at the South Florida fair, held at Tampa some time ago. A very striking exhibit of Canadian products and natural resources was displayed and a "Canada Day" was celebrated, all of which is said to have been a revelation to those who attended.

Buffalo meat from the park at Wainwright has recently been on sale throughout Canada and has been extremely well received. It is described as resembling beef but of a more gamy flavor. Government officials expect that this meat, with hides and other buffalo products, will become a regular source of income to the people of Canada in the future.

Work on the Kenogami dam, in the Province of Quebec, is reported as progressing very well, and the $2,000,000 works located at the upper part of the Saguenay River are expected to be completed within 15 months. As a result of these works, the mills operated by the Price interests will be kept in full activity during the whole year, instead of partly closing down in the winter months, as they have had to do in the past.

More than $12,000,000 worth of equipment was added to the Canadian Pacific Railway's service during 1923. Included were 16 Pacific and 20 Mikado type locomotives, all very powerful and equipped with the most modern devices for power, speed and economical operation. Other items were 15 steel baggage cars, 12 mail and express, 15 first class coaches, 6 cafe-parlor and buffet-parlor cars, 1,000 box cars, 250 freight refrigerator cars, 300 coal cars, 50 oil tank cars, 300 automobile cars, 36 vans for freight conductors and 14 snow-ploughs.

The seventh of Canada's direction-finding stations was recently completed for service by the radio branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, to assist the boats and ships navigating the Bay of Fundy and the coastal waters extending to Boston. This station tends to make the route favored by the Canadian Pacific steamships in winter, already splendidly equipped with safety devices, still safer. By means of the apparatus, the wireless operator of any ship in distress within 400 miles of the Canadian shore can find his location simply by pressing a spring. These stations have been described as "a Godsend to us mariners."

COULDN'T BE DONE

The Irishman was walking along the bank of the river. He was fuming with rage, for that day he had had a dispute with a neighbour over the ownership of a pig, and things had not gone well with him. Suddenly a cry for help rent the air and, turning round, he saw a man struggling in the water.

Seeing Mike on the bank, the man in the water waved his hand and shouted: "Hey mate, drop me a line."

In a flash the man on the bank recognized his adversary in the pig dispute. Thrusting his hands in his pockets he made to resume his walk, remarking over his shoulder: "Shure, but there ain't no fish here you're goin' to!"

THE MERRY IMP OF TYPE

What a difference the change of a letter makes! The most humorous misprint we can remember is this one, which went the round several years ago: "The doctor felt the patient's purse and decided there was no hope."
